Few of these Indian women, however, are even attractive looking, and braves consider that a squaw, was created for use in other words, to shave her "lood," and that to the brave belongs beauty. And, really, the indian men, perhaps because they give more time and attention to their tollettes prinking costumes by far the preater part of their time—and because they don more finery, are really handsomer than the squaws.

It is amusing to see some of the young men who have taken to wife and lead around squaws old enough to be their mothers, the widows of long dead warriors, while the chiefs, some of them old mea, have squaws young enough to be their daughters, many of them having as many as seven wives.
